

← Back to all Events

The Global Economy and the Art Market: A New Perspective in Uncertain Times

ADAA Collectors' Forum

Saturday, December 13, 2008 - 10:00am

The 2008–2009 ADAA Collectors' Forum series begins with “The Global Economy and the Art Market: A New Perspective in Uncertain Times.” This forum will bring together art market specialists and key players to discuss the current economic outlook and its impact on the future direction of the art market. Panelists will address questions such as: Was there an art market bubble, and has it burst? Who will benefit from the current conditions and who will suffer? How can art professionals prepare for what might be ahead? What lessons can be learned from past cycles and how are these times different?

Sponsored by:

Collection of The Butler Institute of American Art

Victor Dubreuil, The Eye of the Artist, circa 1898, oil on canvas.

Location

The New York Historical Society
 170 Central Park West
 New York, NY 10024

Panelists

Roland Augustine
President, Art Dealers Association of America
Co-owner, Luhring Augustine Gallery

Howard Rachofsky
Art Collector

William Goetzmann
Director, International Center for Finance, Yale School of Management

Mary Hoeveler
Art Advisor, M.G. Hoeveler Ltd.

Richard Armstrong
Director, Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum